Description

Dataseeds proposed an app that aims to provide SMEs in the field of agriculture with direct access to information to help them become part of the green restructuring of EU industry. An online platform where they can (i) understand the past through the EU data, (ii) consider the present EU legislative and non-legislative actions, and (iii) create solutions for the future through research centres working in related aspects.

Benefits

The European Data Portal offers access to 90,883 datasets on open environment data, but the quantity of data makes it difficult to find and use the right data. Dataseeds solves this problem.

How open data is used

Multiple datasets are used to help SMEs reduce and control their flows concerning the Green Deal requirements. Information comes from a variety of sources: EEA, Eurostat, EUR-lex, EIB, CORDIS and JRC.
