Description

CIAT (International Center for Tropical Agriculture) works in collaboration with hundreds of partners to help developing countries make farming more competitive, profitable and resilient through smarter, more sustainable natural resource management. They help policymakers, scientists and farmers respond to some of the most pressing challenges of our time, including food insecurity and malnutrition, climate change and environmental degradation.

Benefits

Their global research contributes to several of the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and cuts across four key themes: big data, climate-smart agriculture, ecosystem action and sustainable food systems.

How open data is used

CIAT offers open data to anyone willing to conduct big data analytics in order to enhance the benefit of international agricultural research. They, for example, hosted an Open Data Sprint in 2019.
