Description

The Tree of Truth is a dashboard showing Estonia's progress towards national strategic goals on the basis of national statistics. The website provides information on topics such as security and defense, foreign policy, law, agriculture, energy, transport, culture and sports, education, research and development, welfare, health, and environment. These topics are organised along tree-branches, hence the website's name.

Benefits

Citizens of Estonia are enabled to access national strategic information in an intuitive interface at one central location. Providing access to these datasets improves transparency and gives everyone the opportunity to monitor the country's progress through objective metrics.

How open data is used

The Tree of Truth comprises of data from the Estonian national open data portal, providing open access to public sector data and allowing for re-use and redistribution for commercial and non-commercial purposes.
