Description

Cropti's platform facilitates its management and allows the use of agricultural data to become more efficient through compliance of quality & traceability standards. Farmers have a control panel where they can see what's happening in real time, communicate with their workers and control the analytical accounting of their holdings (e.g. knowing the most profitable crops).

Benefits

-  Cost awareness – allows farmers to better predict the value of their crops based on the analytical accounting of their holdings.
-  Communication – improves the insights by seeing what's happening in real time and option to talk to their workers.

How open data is used

Farms can have a control panel (in the application) that detects whether a plot is marking the limits of inputs that have to be applied per crop in determined areas. In addition, the calculation of surface areas by enclosures of the geographic information system and import of plot data have been implemented.
