

URL <https://openaid.se/aid/2018/>

Quick facts

-  Company: Swedish Government
-  Sector: Government & Public
-  Product / service: Website
-  Type of data: Government spending
-  Origin: Sweden

Description

Openaid.se was started by the Swedish government to provide transparency to its citizens about the social aid it provides to other countries and to refugees. According to the website their goal is to fight poverty as effectively as possible. The website combines multiple open data sources and enables its users to see precisely which money went where. After the Swedish project, similar initiatives were started in, among others, Denmark and the Netherlands.

Benefits

Openaid.se increases transparency about government funding and enables citizens to be informed about public spending.

Sweden's  aid to the world

Total aid by recipient type

Countries
USD 1811 m

How open data is used

Openaid.se combines multiple public open data sources. For instance, openaid.se uses data from governmental organisations, NGO's and public-private-partnerships and shows how much they have spent on different forms of international aid.

