Description

Geburtsspital gives users an overview on maternity hospitals for parents-to-be. Users can look for a specific hospital and find relevant information, such as, the amount of babies delivered, whether the hospital is certified for being breast-feeding friendly (certification by UNICEF), the ratio between natural births or Caesarean sections, amount of ER rooms, delivery rooms, beds, doctors, and nursing staff. Also, for each hospital it shows nearby hospitals. Next to this, the website provides a checklist what to pack for the hospital stay.

Benefits

Parents-to-be get a fast and comprehensive overview on hospitals and can plan the delivery without stress .

How open data is used

Data come from the Swiss Federal Office of Public Health. Also, public reports on Indicators of Swiss Hospitals of 2015 and Quality Indicators of Swiss Hospitals of 2015 are used. GeoNames is used for geographical data. All data merge into a database and users derive results by filling out a search mask that query the database.
