How Open Data is used

- This a tool provided to small and medium-sized businesses that collects local, regional, state and international information, and sort it in tenders, financing and legislation.
- The way it gets the information is using APIs, dataset downloads and above all the search on web pages of the different administrations where all the documentation is downloaded to transform those into data.

Future plans

- The future is continue to improve the form of data conversion and maintaining this tool for accessing it for clients to learn about contracts, subsidies and legislations.
